Book Cover Competition

Normally we would ask you to dress up as book characters on World Book Day. This year, we're going to do something a little bit different.

We would like you to try and recreate a book cover using household objects. You might have seen people trying to do something similar in the first lockdown with famous paintings. Details about how to send in your entries will be posted soon.

Why not get the whole family involved and see how creative can you be!

Challenges

There are also lots of other ways of getting involved so watch this space!
